The View from the Eighth Floor — I had no Idea

A conversation on how colleges of education contribute centrally to the multiple missions and strategic priorities of large research universities, and how their important role in academic excellence is often misunderstood and underestimated.

Dr. John August Interim Dean

College of Education & Human Development,
Texas A&M University

Dr. August joined the College of Education & Human Development as interim dean after many years in the College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences where he served as dean, and after serving in several administrative roles on campus. Join Dr. August in a conversation about his experience as he became aware of the breadth of the college's programs that were not defined in the college's name — from biology of space flight to the development of citizen leaders. And that's just a start.
